THEY WILL CELEBRATE LONG TIME OF GOODFELLOWSHIP

Pacific Club Has Been a Part of the Life of the Town for Many Years. Its History.

The Pacific Club will celebrate its half century tonight by a sumptuous banquet. The occasion lends new interest to the following reminiscences of the club which were printed by the Advertiser in 1901 in the form of an interview with Governor Cleghorn. There is a slight misunderstanding as to dates, but it is possible that the Governor was the victim of typographical error.

"I have been a member of the club 1 now belong to for forty-eight years, and forty-eight years is a long time, but the Pacific Club is even older than that."

Governor Cleghorn is an authority on club life in Honolulu, and has many interesting tales to tell of earlier days, when the clubs of the city served the purpose of home and hostelry, and distinguished guests from abroad were constantly being entertained at the club "mess."

"What is at present the Pacific Club," said he, "was organized in 1851 under the name of the British Club, and there were only fourteen members, not one of whom are now living, but their names are still familiar to the public. There was William L. Greene, who was president; Steven Spencer, W. A. Cooper, S. H. Cooper, Robert Moffitt, Dr. Richard H. Smythe, James E. Chapman, J. R. Dallison, William Webster, John Janison, Charles Gordon Hopkins, H. Fosbrooke, James Olman and Thomas Harding.

"They started up the club in an old one-story wooden building behind old Liberty Hall, which has long since disappeared. That was in '51. They were still there when I joined in '53, but a year afterward we moved into a building on Alakea street, which is now old and dilapidated, but still standing, opposite the Christian Church. After that we were constantly on the move for awhile, until we got into our present quarters, in 1867. In '55 we moved out of the Alakea street building and moved into Adams Lane, into a house once occupied by the late Judge Robert C. Wylie, and we were there only a short time before we had to move out on account of a new building which was to be put up on the site for David L. Gregg, who was then United States minister; that building is now occupied by Mrs. Louise Brickwood, and is known as the Hale Emma building.

"It was in the latter '50's that we moved into our present quarters on Union street, though we only occupied the property facing on Union street at first; it was an old two-story building, originally built for an American club and the property was owned by the late William Wand. We moved in there under an arrangement or rental and we continued to rent the same premises until 1867, when we purchased the land and began to live under our own vine and fig tree. We afterward occupied the property adjoining, and our vine and fig tree spread over our present premises, running through to Alakea street.

"There, at least, we were permanent and comfortable, and there we have stayed ever since. There were seven members who subscribed to buy the property, but we had a much larger membership.

"Club life in those days was very different in Honolulu than it now is. Very few of the members had other homes, and they made the club their home. We often entertained distinguished visitors, and the club was always open to admirals and officers of warships, without regard to nationality. At that time, before San Francisco became the popular port, Honolulu was a general rendezvous for the ships of all nations. There was hardly a week without some man-of-war was in port, and all the clubs entertained lavishly. I am not so well informed as to the other clubs, but they were all similar in nature to the British Club, which is now the Pacific Club. There were several American clubs and one or two German clubs, but none of them were lasting, and I think they were all dissolved and done away with by the year 1875. The German clubs were very merry places; the German method of good cheer being faithfully pursued. The first German club was on a lane leading off from street, and there was another one adjoining the residence of James Campbell on Emma street. My own residence was next to it, and when the clubhouse burned down we had a lively time to save our own property. The clubhouse was burned to the ground, but the members, I believe, reorganized and started over again on the Peck property on the lane leading off Emma street.

"For several years there was a big American club on the spot where the Hawaiian Hotel now stands. The last prominent American club had its headquarters on the Coney property, opposite the Palace grounds, where the Halealea Lawn boarding house now stands. The president was, I believe, Daniel Waterman. Both of the big American clubs continued several years, but later all the clubs of prominence were absorbed by the British Club, the name of which was changed to the Pacific Club by vote when our members of other nationalities had grown to outnumber the English in the membership roll.

"When there were several prominent clubs we frequently entertained each other, and all the clubs of early days frequently had as guests very distinguished people. "Kamehameha IV and Kamehameha V often visited the British Club, and King Kalakaua and his brother, Prince Leleihoku, were both members, as were also the various members of the diplomatic corps.

"The Duke of Edinburgh visited Hawaii in 1868, and while here was the guest of the British Club. In 1869 the flying squadron was here, and we entertained the admiral and officers. Those were lively times. The club doors were always open to visitors from abroad during their residence here, and we were continually entertaining.

"The Pacific or British Club had one doubtful period; that was for a few months in 1863. The membership roll became very small, and the mess department had to be suspended. Mr. Prendergast and myself kept the club up, and later it picked up and got on the road to prosperity again.

"Among the other warships whose officers were entertained by the British Club, was the famous old Merrimack, which afterwards was beaten in battle by the Monitor in the Civil War. She was then one of the first and finest battleships in the world—the 'Genesis of the ironclads.'

"There were few other clubs of prominence after 1870, and the British Club, now the Pacific Club, stood the only club in the city until the Officers' Club was organized, a few years ago.

"Times have materially changed, and our club is merely a club in the sense of other clubs, where one may have 'mess,' play a game of billiards and spend a leisure evening, but we old kamaainas have fond memories of the time when our club was home, hostelry and everything."

MISS PRESCOTT FREES HER MIND

Editor Advertiser: We are amazed that the decent Advertiser should fill its space with the indecent, dastardly, insolent and insulting tirade of a conceited vain-glorious traveler of a day's stay. We are glad he found what he hunted after. He is a fitting guest for the savage and the "fool." The son of Editor Pulitzer forsooth! Gentlemen, rise and remain standing! Our mighty tourist is a thing of the past, and not a kanaka as he emphasizes will miss him for one minute.

No honest Hawaiian earning his living today that would not resent in earnest words the most cowardly attack on our people, of whatever race, and our beloved Hawaii. A cat-o-nine tails would become that dissolute, miserable "son."

THE HONOLULU TIMES.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

We the undersigned Manufacturers of Carbonated Beverages have formed an Association for the mutual protection of our property, viz: bottles and cases, the loss of which during the year last past has been enormous, in fact to such an extent that we have not been able to pay more than running expenses.

As a matter of business, we will, on the 1st day of July, 1903, inaugurate a system whereby a strict account of bottles delivered to and received from each dealer in Carbonated Beverages will be kept, and at the end of each month or as soon as possible thereafter our authorized agent will balance each bottle account and should there be a shortage he will collect for such deficit at the rate of Five Cents per bottle; we respectfully request each dealer in Carbonated Beverages commonly called "Soda Water" to co-operate with us to the extent of requiring a deposit of Five Cents per bottle where said bottles are taken away from their place of business.

We shall on the above date discontinue the practice which has been in vogue for some time of giving any "extra bottles" on each dozen and will discount on our prices which will be net. The increase in the cost of material and the loss of bottles has forced us to make this change in our business methods.

We thank our patrons for their support in the past and solicit a continuance of the same under the new conditions.
